

User research survey results analysis

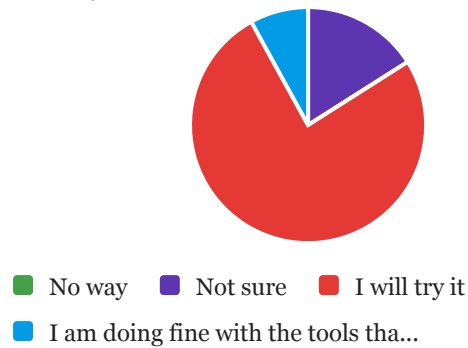

Team Wision (IE169)

This survey had 32 participants.

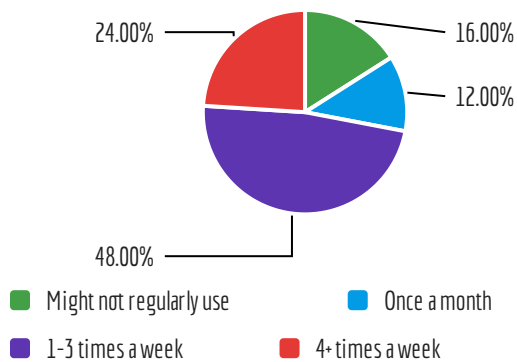

What is your Chinese language level?

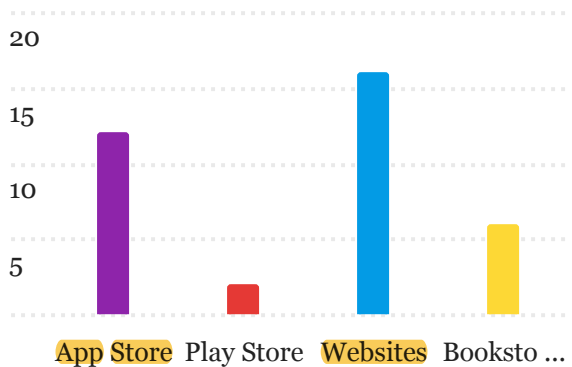

If there is a new Chinese learning tool with gamified features would you try it?

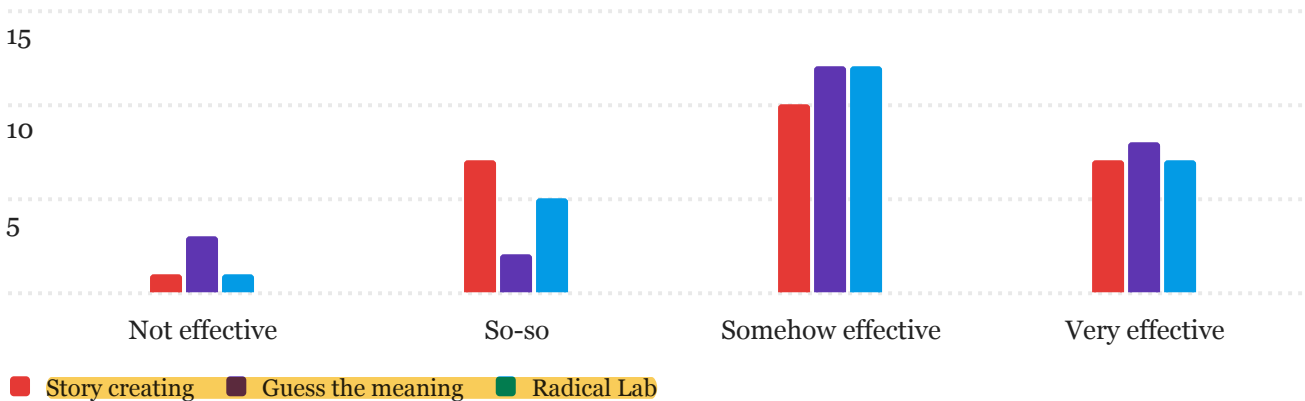

How frequently would you use our web/app?

Where do you usually find additional resources that help you learn Chinese?

Please rate the effectiveness of each of these memorization methods.

What kind of support would make learning characters easier or more fun for you?

What kind of support would make learning characters easier or more fun for you?

Repeated quizzes on the same character like duolingo but we can choose what characters we want to be tested on and recommendations for how we should memorize it

Story telling is the best for me and repetitive writing

If I could practice my writings with somebody or under someone's supervision who's gonna keep me accountable would be a great resource.

More simple explanation and fun games to memorise

regular quizzes

Visual guidance,
more interactive

Small little games. Maybe AI chatting both to practice writing and reading

Gamified board games/apps

I feel like I'd be understanding the background and radicals. Then maybe it would be easier to learn more and quicker. Also storytelling is very good thinking of associations for the shape

A app that gives reminders to revise.

Peer teacher

How can I maintain my character writing skills across time, especially since so often I just type characters?

writing practices

memorizing and associating with other knowledge

If we could have examples of words used in real life!